Sandy Shaffer receives Bill MacKenzie Community Service Award

Max Bennett presents the annual Community Service Award to Sandy Shaffer.

The Bill MacKenzie Community Service Award recognizes woodland owners, natural resource professionals, and other community members who have provided outstanding service to the woodland owner and/or natural resources communities and the public at large in southern Oregon. The award is named after the late Bill MacKenzie, onetime president of the Jackson Small Woodlands Association who went on to be president of the Oregon Small Woodlands Association. The award jury includes Marty Main, Small Woodland Services; Lee Winslow, Oregon Department of Forestry; Bill Collins, Oregon Small Woodlands Association; and Max Bennett, Oregon State University Extension Service.

This year’s award was given to Applegate Valley resident Sandy Shaffer during the Jackson-Josephine Small Woodlands Association’s annual meeting on January 19. Sandy moved to southern Oregon with her husband Don from the San Francisco Bay Area in 1999. Since then, she has been remarkably active in the community wildfire protection arena.

Sandy co-lead the development of the Applegate Fire Plan—the nation’s first Community Wildfire Protection Plan, covering all lands in the 500,000-acre Applegate Watershed. The fire plan addresses fire suppression and protection, fuels reduction, and emergency communications. Fueled by a commitment to extensive public outreach and education, Sandy and other volunteers on the fire plan team convened 40 public meetings in ten months. Ultimately, the development of the plan involved 28 different partners, ranging from government agencies to community groups. The team was awarded a National Fire Plan grant in October 2001, and the plan was printed ten months later—an impressive accomplishment. Some of the results of the fire plan: Over 18,000 federal acres were treated, 600-plus homes now have defensible space, and 50 neighborhood telephone trees were set up for emergency communications. The ultimate result is a community that is aware of, and is adapting to, wildfire.

Sandy broadened her efforts to become active in the development of the Jackson County Fire Plan, including the Jackson-Josephine local coordinating group, the outreach and education committee, and fuels committees. A recent notable effort, one among many, is her leadership of a survey of Wildland Urban Interface residents in portions of Jackson County that produced some very valuable insights into resident attitudes and activities around wildlife.

Sandy’s skills and experience are recognized regionally: she has served on the Western Governor’s forest health advisory committee and several subcommittees since 2003, helped with the National Fire Plan’s ten-year implementation plan, and is currently working with a team that is devising a cohesive national wildfire strategy.

Sandy is a can-do person, a passionate advocate of collaboration, and a tireless volunteer. She exemplifies the spirit of service that the Bill MacKenzie award honors.
